With your help, we can say, "Yes."

At the Sumter Opera House, we believe that all children should have access to the arts — regardless of economic status. Children from economically challenged families are used to hearing the word, "No."

Yes to field trips.

For many children in Sumter, a field trip to the Sumter Opera House is their first exposure to a live performing arts event. Unfortunately, school funding for activities is increasingly limited. Most teachers must ask students to bring money from home to attend a performance with their class. For some students, this is simply not an option.

No child should miss the opportunity to learn through the arts. Donors to the YES Fund make it possible for thousands of children in Sumter to experience the arts regardless of economic circumstances.

Your donation means everything to a child who wants to go on a field trip with their class. All it takes is $10 to ensure that a child is not left behind. For just $250, you can send an entire classroom of children to the theater.

The YES Fund serves thousands of students in multiple schools throughout Sumter to allow all students the opportunity to visit the theater regardless of economic status.

Yes to artists in schools.

The YES Fund will send nationally-recognized artists into local classrooms to lead workshops before and after students attend Matinée performances at the Sumter Opera House. This wide exposure deepens learning, provides positive role models and expands the arts experience beyond the walls of the theater.
